

PDP Board of Directors for 2023 - New Members' Bios

Joanne E. Cash, BNY Mellon

Joanne Cash joined BNY Mellon in 2001 and is currently the Global Head of Enterprise Control Assurance and Operations Control Management. In her role, Joanne works with the business, operations, and technology teams to implement the control framework and manage risk and control with consistent enterprise execution across the firm. She works with the business' CEOs and COOs in implementing these changes, while supporting their risk ownership with the first line of defense. Joanne's teams collaborate with Technology Control, Business, and Operations Managers across the entire enterprise to ensure that the control environment across all in-scope areas is sound and meeting client needs. Joanne is a member of the Global Operations and Technology Executive Committee, the Pittsburgh Executive Committee, and also provides support for the Pittsburgh People Pillar.

Joanne has previously held positions with PriceWaterhouseCoopers in Belfast, Northern Ireland and Ford Motor Company in Basildon, United Kingdom. Joanne received her Post Graduate Diploma in Accounting from Queens University Belfast in 1996 and her Bachelor's Degree in Accounting and French in 1995. Joanne is an Irish Chartered Accountant and has held designations as a Certified Internal Auditor and Certified Information Systems Auditor.

Gabriella C. Gonzalez, Richard King Mellon Foundation

Gabriella C. Gonzalez is a program officer at the Richard King Mellon Foundation. Her areas of expertise are in the future of work, school-to-work transitions, workforce development, and economic inequality. Prior to joining the Foundation, Gonzalez was a senior researcher at RAND Corporation, a non-profit think tank, for 18 years. There, her work included crafting a workforce development system framework for Puerto Rico as it rebuilds after hurricanes Irma and Maria; analyzing the alignment of education and training with workforce needs and employer demands across the energy, health care, and advanced manufacturing industries; evaluating the impacts of education reforms in urban school districts; and assessing education programs and policies that support veterans, servicemembers, and military spouses.

Gonzalez also has written extensively on immigrants' education attainment and on workforce, labor, and education issues in the Middle East while based in the RAND office in Doha, Qatar from 2003-2007. Gonzalez received her doctorate in sociology from Harvard University.
